

The privacy afforded by the current "no call" legislation has been greatly enjoyed and appreciated. It is rare enough today that the family unit enjoys a meal together; enjoying that special time together without the hindrance of annoying promotional calls disrupting one's privacy has truly been a joy. Obtrusive calls for promotional and sales purposes during meal times is one more way to further shred the fiber that holds families together.